Abstract
The cultural parade continues to experience very rapid and lively developments. This is why people suddenly become craftsmen or producers of Carnival costumes, even though they start this business with self-taught abilities. These Carnival costumes are rented out to the wider community who will hold cultural parade events in the local area or outside the region. But unfortunately, the Carnival costume producers do not have the makeup skills to maximize the appearance of their Carnival costume characters. Therefore, the researchers provided makeup training for the community of Carnival costume developers in Ronggo Village, Kecamatan Tajinan, so that people can better package the products produced. First, a survey was carried out about the costume craftsmen’s location and costume reconstruction. The method of cooperation (cooperative) was used, and the activities included explanations or lectures, and practical training on makeup and show clothes. This service was carried out for 2 months starting from the making of dedication proposals, preparation for the implementation of training, training on makeup and performance clothing, and taking certificates. The training was carried out by researchers who were observed by three observers. The community looked very active and already had pretty good makeup skills. After conducting the training, the presenter evaluated the results of the makeup training demonstration and provided conclusions. It is hoped that the next service can be held again with different research targets.

The term costume applies to the general public (not for performances only). What distinguishes costume clothes from ordinary clothes is the moment of wearing or using the clothes. Costume clothes are used in certain moments such as carnivals, ceremonies or plays. Meanwhile, Carnival is historically a celebration held before the pre-Easter period, which is often carried out by Catholic Christians in Europe and America. The term carnival itself according to experts comes from Latin, namely carne which means meat. Carnival enters into English, which is a Germanic language that was first spoken in early medieval age and is currently the most commonly spoken language throughout the world. From this definition it can be concluded that carnival is a festive event thus this event is the most eagerly awaited in various celebrations. As an explanation of the definition of carnival, the following examples of carnival in Indonesia will be given.

In makeup training, people gain experience in the form of demonstration of steps to prepare tools, materials, linen and cosmetics, demonstration of facial cleansing steps using cosmetic cleansers and fresheners with cosmetic fresheners, application of moisturizer, foundation and powder, application of eyeshadow and eyeshadow bases to the eyelids, demonstration of how to use eyeliner on the eyeline and mascara and false lashes on the upper and lower lashes, eyebrow pencil in making eyebrows, application of shading and blush, and shaping lips by applying lipstick and lip gloss.

The art of makeup aims to form the impression of a model's face into a form of fantasy that is imagined, but is immediately recognized by the viewer. [3] The embodiment of the creativity of a beautician who wants to apply his dreams or delusions in the form of a historical figure, personality form, flower and/or animals motifs or stylization by applying makeup, bodypainting, styling hair, and complementary accessories. The embodiment of the fantasy of a beautician who wants to describe dreams in the form of historical figures, personalities, flowers or animals, by applying makeup, painting on the body, styling hair, clothing and accessories; for example, the form of a beautiful princess, flower princess, sea goddess, mermaid or others. We can see the activities of training participants from the involvement of training participants in various training processes such as listening to lectures, discussing, making something, implementing a skill, making a report on the implementation of tasks and so on. Meanwhile, learning activities are all activities carried out in the process of interaction between trainers and participants in order to achieve learning goals. [6]

Based on the assessment of the training participants’ activities above, it can be concluded that a good or active activity of the trainees is that the participants listen and look carefully at the time the material is presented and practice skills together.
